numerous jurisdictions worldwide have augmented their ratification of the new york convention of 1958 with the uncitral model law 1985 uml which takes a giant step forward toward global uniformity in legal application and understanding of the arbitration process this book develops a standard or benchmark for the uml objective of uniformity using the relevant legislation and case law of hong kong singapore and australia to consider whether a uniform approach to implementation of the uml and its interpretation is being achieved across those jurisdictions the author s methodological tools are eminently adaptable to other jurisdictions given the importance of the ability to set aside an arbitral award the body of case law on setting aside and the directly related area of enforcement the emphasis throughout is on article 34 in addition the study considers the meaning of uniformity in law and in the context of the uml the correct approach to interpretation of the uml pre and post article 2a the interpretation relationship between the uml and the convention on contracts for the international sale of goods cisg the relationship between the uml and the new york convention the degree of textual uniformity of article 34 with the three jurisdictions focused on and the degree of applied uniformity of article 34 both in terms of juristic methodology and similarity of results the author with more than thirty years of practice in the field of commercial arbitration in hong kong has had access to voluminous cases spanning decades and brings his specialist expertise to the subject this book considers whether the uml has succeeded in its aim of achieving uniformity it serves as a guide both academic and practical to exploring and adopting the correct approach to the interpretation of the uml as well as to the method of classification of court decisions under the uml this study is of immeasurable academic and practical value does context and context dependence belong to the research agenda of semantics and specifically of formal semantics not so long ago many linguists and philosophers would probably have given a negative answer to the question however recent developments in formal semantics have indicated that analyzing natural language semantics without a thorough accommodation of context dependence is next to impossible the classification of the ways in which context and context dependence enter semantic analysis though is still a matter of much controversy and some of these disputes are ventilated in the present collection this book is not only a collection of papers addressing context dependence and methods for dealing with it it also records comments to the papers and the authors replies to the comments in this way the contributions themselves are contextually dependent in view of the fact that the contributors to the volume are such key figures in contemporary formal semantics as hans kamp barbara partee reinhard muskens nicholas asher manfred krifka jaroslav peregrin and many others the book represents a quite unique inquiry into the current activities on the semantics side of the semantics pragmatics boundary

if a treaty from the 1850s regulating commerce or forbidding degrading treatment of persons is to be interpreted 150 years later does commerce or degrading treatment of persons have the same meaning at the time of interpretation as they had when the treaty was agreed the evolutionary interpretation of treaties has proven one of the most controversial topics in the practice of international law indeed it has been seen as going against the very grain of the law of treaties and has been argued to be contrary to the intention of the parties breaching the principle of consent this book asks what the place of evolutionary interpretation is within the understanding of treaties at a time when many important international legal instruments are over 50 years old it sets out to place the evolutionary interpretation of treaties on a firm footing within the general rule of interpretation as codified in article 31 of the vienna convention on the law of treaties the book demonstrates that the evolutionary interpretation of treaties in common with all other types of interpretation such as good faith the text of the treaty context object and purpose is in fact a based upon an objective understanding of the intention of the parties in order to marry intention and evolution in this way the book argues that on the one hand evolutionary interpretation is the product of the correct application of article 31 and on the other that article 31 is geared towards the establishment of the intention of the parties the evolutionary interpretation of treaties is therefore shown to represent an intended evolution
